

Mike Byce PGA
Director of Golf @ The Creek Golf Club
PGA Member since 1999
4 year letterman Clemson University Golf Team

My teaching philosophy is outcome based. There is not one correct way to strike a golf ball. All you have to do is watch the PGA Tour to see that everyone has a unique swing and putting stroke that works for them.

I start each lesson with a conversation about goals and physical limitations and stress that first and foremost this is a game and it is all about having fun. That being said, it is more fun when you are seeing improvement in your game. I will help you to identify patters in your ball flight and short game and recommend ways to improve your misses and get the ball closer to your target line and ultimately in the hole.

I prefer to teach a minimum of 3 lessons so that we can address full swing, short game and course management issues to give you the best opportunity for genuine improvement.

I have students ranging in ability from complete beginner to Professional golfers. The common theme is that they all want to improve. I look forward to helping you reach your goals and have more fun playing golf.